Additional Steps for a Network Installation

Network Installation

Essentially, there is no benefit to installing and running InsurancePro through a local network. Rather, we recommend you run the program independently on each computer. With the Online Storage feature, your client files are hosted on ITC's servers; therefore, you will be accessing and sharing the same client information database from each of your computers, even without InsurancePro being networked within your agency. It is not necessary to install a copy of InsurancePro on your server to be able to share your client database. However, if you still desire to complete a network installation, follow the steps listed below.

Install InsurancePro on every computer. It is necessary to install InsurancePro on each workstation, even if the software is intended to be run on a network. Certain files must reside on each workstation's local C: drive in order for InsurancePro to run properly. Those files are copied to each individual workstation during the installation process.

Follow the directions starting on page 2 to install InsurancePro on each workstation as well as the server. After InsurancePro has been installed on all computers, continue with the directions on page 7.

Edit Shortcut on each Workstation. After the installation process is completed on each computer (including the server), edit the shortcut path on each workstation to point to the server. This can be done by right-clicking on the InsurancePro icon located on each workstations' desktop and selecting "Properties" from the menu.

Change the drive letter to the drive letter associated to your server. In the box labeled "Target", change the drive letter from C:\ to the drive letter that is assigned to your server. For example, if your server is assigned drive letter F:\, change the Target to read F:\InsurancePro\InsPro.exe.

This step needs to be completed on every workstation.

Setup Complete. This completes the network installation process.
